Basically, we have to rethink who we are, what we do and what we've been doing. There is an excellent post over at Goodmanson.com about the decline of the Western church. That post pretty much sums up what I've been trying to share and convince others of. I believe it is time in the UMC that we stop trying to do the same things, believing that if we just did those things better, or smarter, we would be effective for the kingdom. It is time that the church stop preaching the "Come Grow with Us" mantra and begin to "Go out and Go deep." (A reference to the post).
